«Not all Hibakusha — the atomic bomb survivors — can talk about their memories of the moments after the bomb. Let me share one case. After the bomb, there was a mother who had her own child under the debris. The child was alive, but she could not go to help. She had to decide whether to escape from the fire, or stay and die with the child. Those crucial decisions needed to be made. She decided to leave, but she regretted her decision all her life.»
